

How to Choose the Right Harness for Your Pet

Walkin' Pets offers many different support harnesses tailored for your pet's specific needs. We have you covered whether you need rear, front, or full body support. The first step in choosing the right harness for your pet is to determine where the weakness is.

Where is Your Pet Struggling?

Selecting the correct harness for your dog is as simple as knowing where they need help and most support. Dogs with front leg weakness will need a different style harness than a dog with weak back legs.

How Weak Are Your Pet's Legs?

The level of support your dog needs will vary based on its leg function and strength. Ask yourself, is your dog completely paralyzed, or are their legs just beginning to lose strength? Are they able to stand up on their own? How often does your dog lose their balance? Answering these questions can help determine where your dog needs support, which is key to getting them the right lifting harness.

Will You Be Using A Wheelchair?

Wheelchair-compatible lifting harnesses offer the best of both worlds. They provide lifting support whenever your dog needs it and make it easier to get your dog into the wheelchair and create a comfortable support system for the wheelchair.

When Would a Lifting Harness Be Useful?

- Healing from a knee injury
- Helping on the stairs
- Climbing in or out of the car
- When a dog needs help getting up off the ground
- Your pet needs help getting outside to go potty
- To help support your pet in a wheelchair for daily walks
